This is my Method : - (void)imagePickerController:(UIImagePickerController *)picker didFinishPickingMediaWithInfo:(NSDictionary *)info { [self dismissViewControllerAnimated:YES completion:nil]; UIImage *image = [info objectForKey:UIImagePickerControllerOriginalImage]; NSLog(@"image Saved = %@",image); NSString *imageString = [NSString stringWithFormat:@"%d, %@", image.size.width, image.size.height]; self.ImageTxt.text = imageString; [picker dismissViewControllerAnimated:YES completion:nil]; } I would like to show the saved image in the viewcontroller. But here it is not showing me an image. Image is shown while I click on image picker in the simulator, by selecting image of camera roll and takes the image and then saves in my project. A: Firstly, in your code, check whether that image has been released correctly before you attempt to use it.
In your code example, you're not doing that, so you're leaking the image object. There are two ways to release an image: The first is to ensure that the image has been autoreleased when you set it. In your case, you've already told the image picker controller to autorelease the image when you supply the image picker with an autoreleased image from your array. The imagePickerController:didFinishP
